President's Corner – by Jill Nondorf

SWE Fiscal Year 2011 has officially begun! I am looking forward to my role as President of the Section this year. During my time as President I am hoping to get more members involved in areas that appeal to them. I want to hear what you want your Section to provide for you! Please do not hesitate to share your interests and goals with me. I'm currently spending time trying to sort out all of the new responsibilities for the year. I want to extend my gratitude for all of the members who have stepped up during the last month so I could attend to a family emergency. Things are finally starting to calm down and I'm ready to extend more effort to SWE.

During the month of July many members have volunteered for positions within the Section, but there are also several spots still open. Please see the list of descriptions in the newsletter. We'd love to have you join us! Also, I'd like to extend a HUGE thank you to those who are already in positions. We are well on our way and planning events for the year.

Our Strategic Planning Meeting will be held on August 21 (details in the newsletter). All members are welcome to attend the meeting to brainstorm ideas for the upcoming year. The meeting will run from 8:30-3:30. During the meeting we will discuss goals and objectives for FY11, ideas for events, improvement suggestions, a leadership seminar, etc. I look forward to meeting the new EC members as well as any new faces present.

Our Section covers such a large area, that I am looking at ideas on how to make covering all of the members equally. I feel this is our biggest challenge as a Section, and I am hoping to address some of this challenge during my time as President. There will likely be some changes in terms of the committee members so volunteers can focus more on planning and attending events in their geographic location. I feel this effort will enable us to plan better events for the members and give volunteers a lighter load to carry. This will be discussed heavily at the planning meeting on August 21st. You will continue to see Meet and Greet events, professional development and outreach opportunities, similar to last year. We have an excellent joint meeting planned with Kimberly-Clark (details in the newsletter).

I'm very excited to get this SWE new year started and looking forward to meeting more of you!

~Jill

Multicultural Morsel By Betty Leonhard

I thought I'd take a different route for this column today. We're engineers, we like numbers, so let's see some demographics:

- 70 Million= the number of Americans that identify themselves as something other than Caucasian (about ¼ .)
- $900 billion= the annual spending controlled by minorities.
- 16 to 22% = the population growth of African Americans, the largest minority group (with a substantial growth living in suburbs and of higher education and income.)
- 35 million = number of Hispanics in the US (almost matching the population of African Americans and moving to a wide variety of geographic locations.)
- 2 X = The increase in Asian population from 1990 to 2000: from 6 to 12 million people. (but they tend to be more segmented)
- $35 billion in revenue = the highest growth in companies are those owned by Native Americans.

Multiculturalism is now mainstream in the US. Just check out the items in your grocery cart next time you're at the store. Minorities have an increasing amount of buying power. Companies have a matching amount of opportunities for marketing. Those opportunities mentioned in my last article to interact with other cultures are becoming more readily available.

“So Why Should We Hire You?”

If you are currently in a job search chances are you've been asked that question already. Undoubtedly, it is the most feared interview question, but one of the most common. It pays to be ready to answer it. helps to understand that the question is an invitation for you to sell yourself. This is a good thing. No one is going to hire you until they have been sold on you. This is your chance to state your value to the prospective employer. The best way to answer this question is to prepare for it like a sales person. There are three steps to selling yourself with confidence.

1. Know your product “YOU.”

Every successful salesperson knows their product inside and out. They understand the benefits of each product feature. In like manner, you must be able to articulate your transferable skills. First, take inventory of your skills. Make sure the skills you focus on are in demand for the position you seek. Next, take stock of the times of crisis when you've used those skills to solve problems. Finally, ask yourself what your employer got out of your successes on the job. Did you save time or money, increase revenue, improve service or increase productivity? Your success stories carry more weight when you can quantify the results. These success stories make up your selling points.

2. Know the challenges of the position.

Before you can tell them why they should hire you, you must understand their current challenges. After all, you couldn't sell a car unless you knew understood how it was to be used. Until you know what challenges go with the position you won't know which of your selling points to talk about. To learn about their challenges you must ask them.

In the beginning of the interview ask your interviewer, “What challenges do you see as most significant for this position in the first six months?” Take careful note of his/her response. You will learn the “hot button” issues that you must sell you.

3. Match your skills to their challenges.

Here is where you get to sell yourself. Once you understand the critical skills they need for the job you simply share with them your success stories of when you have faced similar problems and how you solved them. Be sure to include the all-important benefit your company received. Start off your value statements with phrases like:

“I found a significant savings opportunity when...”

“My team gained efficiency when I discovered how to...”

“My boss achieved his quarterly objective when I...”

Remember, even if you don't get asked “why should we hire you” it is the underlying question and the point of the whole interview. Job interviews are your chance to sell your skills, talents and expertise. Before your next interview practice good salesmanship and prepare to sell yourself like a pro.

OCIETY UPDATE

Section Representatives Report

- 2011 Region H Conference Update: The Regional Conference will be the weekend of February 5th in Ann Arbor, Michigan. If your company is able to assist in sponsorship, please contact Jennifer at jennifer.morikawa@swe.org. Your assistance to obtain sponsors is especially needed this year. Also they are currently taking suggestions for sessions, which may be sent through Jennifer as well.
- Region H Nominating Chair for FY11: Region H elected Cathy Pieronek as the Region's nominating chair for this year. Succession planning is a year-long process. If you might have an interest in a Region H position for FY12 or if you'd like to be on the committee, contact Cathy Pieronek cpierone@nd.edu.
- Region Committees: If you have an interest in participating on any region committees contact Wendy at wendy.landwehr@ngc.com. The committees are: Assessment, Awards, Collegiate Transition, Celebrate SWE, Procedures, and Nominating. Some are still looking for chairs. Our Section's own Julia Spankowski is chair of the Region H Procedures Committee and Assessment Committee.
- Mega Issues: Senators worked on several Mega Issues in FY10 and closed out discussion and recommendations on three of them:
 - MI00104 How do we match the skills, interests, and capacities of our volunteers with the needs of SWE to create a satisfying partnership that will last throughout their lifecycle?
 - MI00105 How can women engineers be successful in the engineering workforce of 2020? What will be the impact of the changing demographics of the engineering workforce?
 - MI00106 How can we empower women engineers to be successful on their own terms?
- Strategic Plan: The Society's strategic plan has been updated for FY11. One of the most noticeable changes is that the objectives have been edited to be measurable goals. Here are the focus areas for FY11:
 - Increase the impact of outreach activities by training a minimum of 1,000 members on messaging to all STEM stakeholders.
 - Offer quality professional development programs for all career stages and sectors as measured by program survey results.
 - Increase the number of discussions on SWE's position papers with industry, government, and academic influencers by 20%.
 - Improve the SWE membership and leadership profile to reflect the demographics of women in engineering and technology.

Details on all the Senate or Region business can be found online in their respective communities.
